IOP1601 MODULE

The IOP1601 module (Personality in the work context) is an online module, which is offered by the Department of Industrial and Organisational Psychology to students in various departments in the College of Economic and Management Sciences (CEMS).

For students registered for 2018, the summative (examination) assessment for this module takes the form of an online exam. The exam opens on 22 October and closes on 26 October 2018. Students may take the exam at their convenience at any time during this time.

This means students need time to prepare similarly as they would if they were writing a venue-based examination. All students registered for this module have to submit this examination / summative assessment by the stipulated date.

Yours sincerely
